

Max-Act 1

Your Announcements

- (#9) “Kevin, Brad – I’m really happy to see you two here tonight. You know what? I want to apologize to you guys. Brad, I’m sorry I won the starting quarterback spot from you in high school. I was better and deserved it, and you had no business being the quarterback in the first place, but I know you would have loved to have thrown the game winning touchdown in the championship game senior year. You didn’t, though. I did, and it felt fantastic. I’m sorry you weren’t good enough to experience that. And Kevin, I’m sorry that Stacey had to dump you to go out with me. Sure, any girl would have done the same thing, but it must have stung. I think the fact that you had a terrible game that night in the conference basketball championship and refused to leave the locker room in the second half is evidence of that. Does the memory of abandoning your team like that still keep you up at night? I hope not.”
- (#11) “Stacey, I’m tired of you giving me grief all the time! Do you guys know what that fight was about? Stacey, here, is a spend-a-holic! Just last year, she spent over $150 grand on her own clothing! Now, I make a good living, sure, but - $150 grand on clothing! And talk about needing anger management classes – I had the audacity to suggest that maybe she tone it down, and the next thing I know a phone book’s flying at my face!”

Responses to Announcements

- Announcement #7: Brian will tell the group he caught you and Amanda making out during high school when you were already exclusive with Stacey. Wait for Amanda to respond first. Regardless of whether she confirms or denies, tell Stacey without remorse that it’s true, but say that it’s been 10 years, so who cares? Tell Brian that when he was telling his story about how you roughed him up he forgot to mention that you gave him a wedgie and dunked his head in the toilet, which was hilarious. He was a nerd then, and he’s a nerd now, and all his money won’t change that.
- Announcement #8: Cristina will mention a comment your father made to her about Principal Anderson not being a model of integrity and will then ask you about it. Tell her that your old man just says weird things sometimes.
- Announcement #9: After your announcement, Kevin and Brad will insult you. Mockingly tell them it’s just sour grapes. All you did was apologize.
- Announcement #12: Stacey will tell the group that you convinced your parents to bribe Principal Anderson to make you the starting quarterback. Wait for Principal Anderson to respond first. After he does, regardless of what he says, admit to the group that what Stacey says is true, but claim it obviously was the right choice. You did, after all, lead the team to back-to-back state championships.